

What is the Chiari1000?

The Chiari1000 was launched in September 2015 as a groundbreaking research project whose aim was to use the web to create a consistent dataset on a large, diverse population of at least 1,000 Chiari patients. Participants answered self-report surveys, complete validated, neuropsychological scales, and share their medical imaging (MRIs, CTs, etc.). In addition, some participants provided biological samples and participate in additional studies.

Thanks to the Chiari community, the Chiari1000 has become a tremendous research asset. The purpose of this website is to provide a summary of the Chiari1000 data to the Chiari community who essentially created it: <https://chiari1000results.info/>

Here is the latest announcement from Conquer Chiari regarding the Chiari1000:
<https://www.conquerchiari.org/library/index/click/613>

